John, Pat & Hank

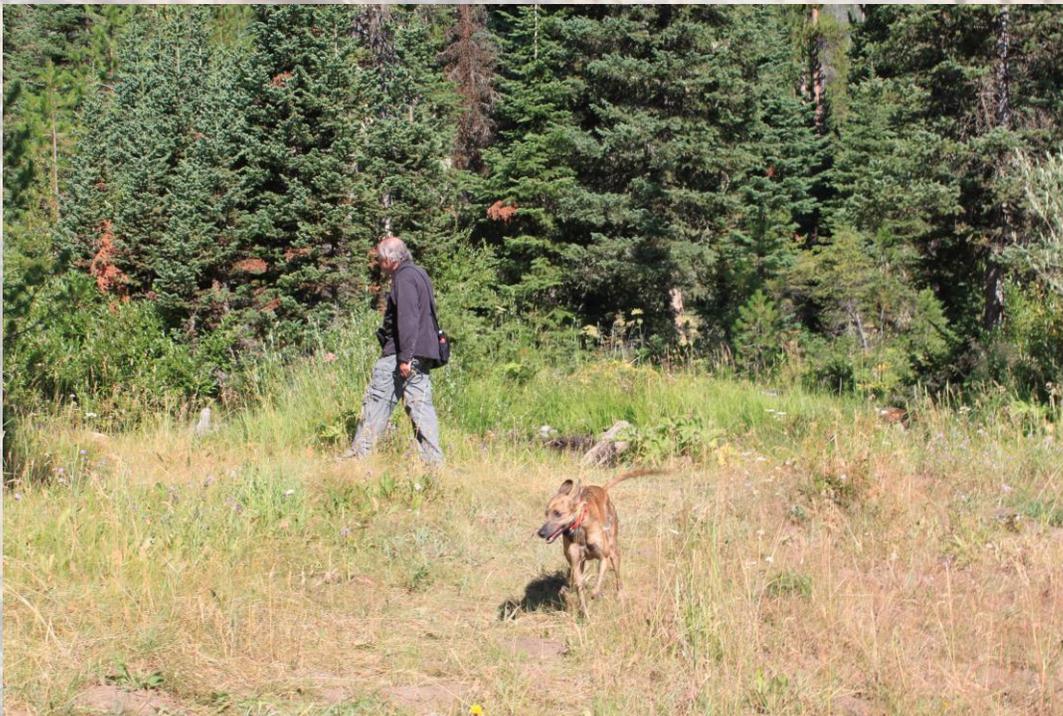

After several nights on the road, we were in Cody at the Buffalo Bill Museum where we saw this rabbit. We spent the night in Cody and in the morning, 08August2018, we drove in from the East Entrance to Yellowstone NP. Beautiful mountains and waterfalls next to the road.

As we passed through West Yellowstone, the Mountain Man Rendezvous was underway. We went directly to Rumbaugh Creek to check possibilities.

Hank led the search up and down Rumbaugh Creek.

We retrieved water from Rumbaugh Creek again and made sure it was secure. We had oversight as we searched.

Using GPS cords for position checks aided in the search. We noticed this arrangement at the Mountain Man Rendezvous later in the day.

We drove along Contour Road which overlooks Hebgen Lake from the south of Denny Creek Road. Then back to Watkins Creek campground to search the creek again.

We found a den on an island up the creek and poked around a little.

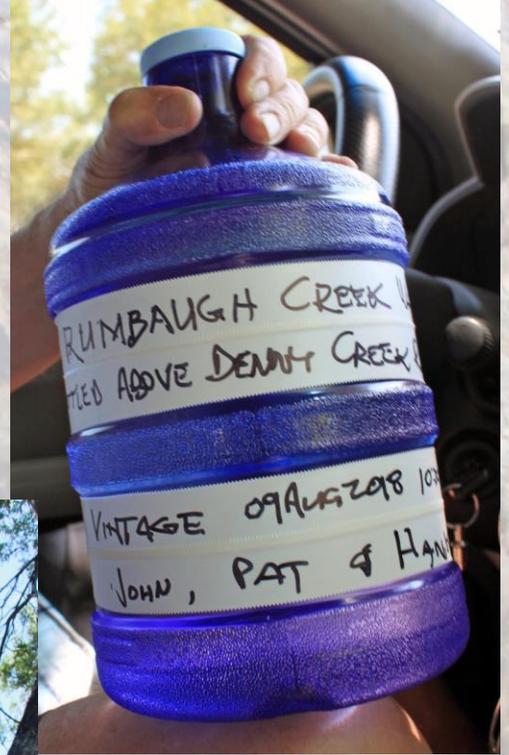

A lot of nooks and crannies, but not a significant blaze that we could find. Later we prepared our own blaze and encouraged our imaginations to expand. The next morning, on 11 August 2018, we packed up and made a last visit to Rumbaugh Creek where Pat found the radio I had lost two days before.

We returned through the Idaho fields, down through Rock Springs and ended up at Irish Canyon which was 30 miles from Vermillion Falls. We then headed for Leadville where we saw these painted stones at the edge of town.

We labeled up the water from Rumbaugh Creek and delivered it to the Collected Works Bookstore in Santa Fe who promised to notify Forrest that it was there. We spent the afternoon, 13 August 2018, in Santa Fe.

We returned home after a walk on Canyon Road in Santa Fe.
